

MANAGER COMMENTARY

December proved to be a positive month for investors, ending the year optimistically on the basis that we have reached the peak of the current interest rate cycle. All the US, UK, Japanese, and European policymakers kept the rates the same, and the consensus is now firmly pointing to material interest rate cuts in 2024. This optimism was driven by inflation continuing to fall. The latest US inflation figures were in line with expectations, and the UK figure was sharply lower than the markets' estimates. An early Santa rally was further boosted by Jerome Powell's extremely dovish comments and the fact that the possibility of rate cuts was discussed at the last Fed meeting. In the US, the S&P 500 was up by 3.81%; in the UK, the all-companies index was up by 3.35%, while the top 100 companies index returned 2.70%. This is the second month in a row where small and medium-sized stocks have outperformed the large-cap. In the fixed income world, the 10-year US Treasury yields rallied by 8.6%, but this was dwarfed by the rally in the 10-year UK gilts yields rally of 14.5%. The value of Sterling against the Dollar was almost unchanged, with a gain of 0.22%, whilst the Dollar index, as measured by the DXY, ended the month at 101.33, down 1.87%. Data source: Uptata Analytics Pro, 01/12/2023 to 29/12/2023

December was a positive month for the Fund, with a return of 5.01%. However, it marginally underperformed its benchmark return of 5.44%. As this is such a short period to compare performance, this is mainly down to the valuation time difference between the two; otherwise, the Fund has performed practically in line with the benchmark. All the Fund's sub-sectors performed positively during the month. The best return was achieved by the Fund's exposure to small cap with a return of 8.25%; in contrast, the Fund's multi-cap managers added the least value with a return of just under 4%. At holdings level, Chrysalis, an LSE listed stock, was the Fund's best performer with a return of 12.1% followed by the iShares FTSE 250 ETF up by 8.02%. There were no changes, as your managers remain reasonably comfortable with the current shape of the Fund. Finally, looking forward, the managers are optimistic about the prospects for a reduction in interest rates in 2024, and as a result, they are more confident about potential future returns. Source: FE Fundinfo, 30/11/2023 to 29/12/2023*
